Industrial Remix

Looking beyond the humble inspirations of industrial-styled home furnishings, the Currey & Company Design Team has created new additions to the Currey Industrial Collection that are sophisticated and refined. Rustic gears, old metal hinges and factory turbines have been replaced by polished surfaces, satin black finishes, captured glass and simple silhouettes. You can count on our designers for an original take on this continuing design trend.

Telegram Chandelier

Step back into the 1920's; you have just entered the magnificent Farley Building in Midtown Manhattan to send an urgent telegram. Look up! This is the perfect setting for the Telegram Chandelier. The 10-light chandelier gently illuminates. Hand finished with French Black, the captured glass protects a new technology for that era—the cost effective incandescent bulb!

N'est Pas Pendant

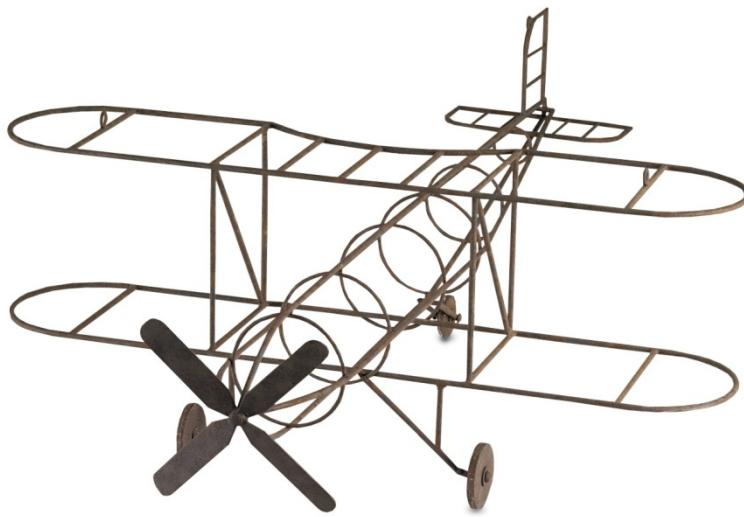

Archway Pendant

Pendant lighting plays an important role in modern, industrial designs. The N'est Pas Pendant, so versatile and functional, would look great hung in multiples or solo. The Hiroshi Gray, Antique Red & White finish gives a modern take on a vintage look. The smooth surface of the Archway Pendant is also finished with Hiroshi Gray and an off white interior. Gray is trending to be the new black and works as an understated neutral in any room.

Dashiell Table Lamp

Table Lamps are taking cues from the industrial design movement. The Dashiell Table Lamp base is created with strips of metal assembled in a crisscross pattern. The effect is pure geometry! An oatmeal linen shade is the perfect complement to the Mayfair finished wrought iron base.

Spirit of Mercury

Whimsy joins the industrial remix with the Spirit of Mercury named after Amelia Earhart's airplane. Handcrafted of wrought iron with an Old Rust finish, this delightful decorative accessory can mix with a variety of decors, both traditional and modern.
